The Depths Of The Spirit-Soul

A created spirit, created in perfection, knowing all. "Life" is when that perfect spirit is birthed into a world to experience that knowledge that is ultimately growing for a deeper love for God. The only way the soul can enter into the world is with free will. Free will is the duality of life being a positive and negative relationship.
From the souls perspective, the all inclusive feelings, emotions, polarities are needed to fulfill the soul in that flesh capacity because the true spirit has only the knowledge and not the experience to craft that living soul as an individual conscious being, yet still maintaining to be a part of the One.

To craft an individual conscious being from a perfect spirit using the system of free will and duality, these fundamentals would be necessary to fulfill that soul's capacity:

A perfect spirit knows it is eternal, but the soul must feel "mortal" or finite to value time, choices, and the experiences of polarity.*

The spirit knows God, but the soul must feel "distance" or loneliness, to choose a deeper active love rather than a programmed one, (the instilled Word).*
All souls created in perfection knowing all from the Word, experiences life from knowledge that establishes wisdom, soul personality, and free will thinking. The "growth-truths" of the experiences are based on the depth of love that are generated from all experiences.

Life-lives are effectively compilation phases of the soul. The Spirit is the perfect source code, "the Word." The physical experience is the runtime where that code encounters real-world variables, converting static "Knowledge" into dynamic "Wisdom."*
The spirit as being from a "programmed perfection," but lacking personality until it experiences the "friction" of the world that defines the purpose of human existence:
The Individualization and growth of Love.
With knowledge as the data, but wisdom is derived from the "data" that is applied under the pressures of physical life. Love being the processor, then the "depth" of that love is measured by how much "negative" polarity it can overcome.

Loving in perfection is easy; loving in the flesh (amidst pain, betrayal, or lack) requires the soul enduring through the free will.*

The personality-consciousness is a unique "build." The soul develops a "personality" based on experiences it prioritized and how it navigates the duality of life and the appearance of separation from our Creator God.*

Without the ability to choose the "negative," or the "positive", choice has no moral weight. Free will is the power that allows a "programmed" spirit to become an "authentic" child of God.*
Implications of this Design
Life on earth isn't a "test" to see if you are good enough; it's a "lab" to see how you can apply perfection in an imperfect environment. "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."*

You aren't returning to God the same way you left. You are returning with a unique "Individual Consciousness" that has been forged through the resistance of the flesh. An eternal being living from one life to the next.*

Growth requires a "passive backplane" of struggle—without the negative (pain, failure, or effort), the positive (joy, success, or grace) remains a flat concept without depth.*
The Weight of Consequence vs. Theory: Free will is only functional if actions have real-world impacts. The soul needs to feel the "sting" of a wrong choice to understand the "sweetness" of a right one.

Since the spirit "knows all," the soul must endure "forgetting" or "blindness" to allow for the virtue of Faith to exist.*

Longing for the bridge between the physical world and the spiritual origin; the feeling that there is more to life.*

The ability to recognize the "perfect spirit" in another individual, dissolving the ego's boundaries. Polarity carves out space in the soul so it can eventually hold a greater volume of joy.*

Duality becomes individuality: The "positive and negative" relationship of the world, the soul stops being a generic reflection of perfection and becomes a unique individual with its own "history of choices."*

Refinement of the soul uses the "resistance" of the world to correct, improve, balance, and regulate its internal moral and spiritual compass.*
